A View from County Hall

The Minerals and Waste Joint Plan (MWJP) seems to be the hot topic this month. I was first involved with this plan through my work with the Campaign for the Protection of Rural England (CPRE) long before being elected to either District or County Council and I was delighted to see the final draft plan sent to the planning inspector for the "Examination in Public". Having sat on both District and County planning committees, I bear the scars of trying to determine a planning application when the current Development Plan is outdated. In effect, we have no local voice because where the Local Plan is out of date then the National Plan takes its place.

Planning can be a very emotive topic, but the policies within the MWJP are made in a non adversarial environment allowing structured debate and a negotiated stance to be formed between all stakeholders including you as residents. How quick we are to form campaign groups but reluctant to respond to consultations.

There are some who seek to use the MWJP a tool to stop "Hydraulic fracturing" in North Yorkshire. The plan contains important policies for oil and gas, and as NYCC is the first local authority to put forward a development plan containing policies for unconventional gas, you can be sure that all eyes will be watching us. However when a local plan is misused in this manner, there is a danger that policies for other important developments such as land fill, quarries and incineration, simply get thrown out with the bathwater.

Radio York drops in on the library.

Just as we were opening last Saturday morning we heard the news on the radio that the presenters from Radio York's 'Finders Keepers' were on their way to the Community Hall with a 'clue'.

Before we could catch our breath, Jeremy and Adam appeared in the car park and - on air - came into the hall to open their next clue. [It was the prison in Hunmanby, you may remember if you were listening].

They looked around the new hall and were really thrilled with it, even taking the time on air to praise the library and the excellent refreshments we offer. They recommended to anyone listening, that they come down to see for themselves what a great community facility it is. What a brilliant advertisement from a truly independent and well travelled team.

During the run up to Spring our feature table will have a varied selection of seasonal themes and garden inspirations. With around 3500 books, including large print together with DVD's and jigsaws, the library has a great deal to offer.

We serve tea, coffee and biscuits.

You don't have to be a 'reader' come for a chat with old friends and make new ones.

If you wish to contact us our email address is:

We look forward to seeing you
